A GOOD REMEDY.

These tender glances that our Minnie is making at our servant have got to stop. Leave that to me; we will have them marry, and then this lovemaking will sit Das Kleine Witzblatt.

Miss Black: "I'm disgusted with my dressmaker; my new costume doesn't fit a little bit!"
Miss White: "Well, I heard you tell her you wanted it 'awful bad'."

Mr. Grumps: "Why do you need so much money for shopping?"
Mrs. G.: "Oh, just for cigars and wine bills and club dues and poker."
Mr. G.: "Oh, cut it out! Here's your check."

Buster Bill: "What makes dat spinach grow so fast on yer face?"
Scooter Sam: "Aw, it's dis way! Whenever I go dese days day feeds me on breakfast hay."

Cholly: "Aw-spring is heah, old boy! Time faw the fashions to-aw-change!"
Algie: "Aw-yes! I'm going to take off me chest-protector to-day and weah a small bouquet instead-aw!"

WEDDING TOUR PER AUTOMOBILE.

He: "Emma, I see you do not love me any more. You object to the benzine smell." — Meggen-dorfer Blaetter.

MELANCHOLY.

"Doesn't the snow-covered park arouse a melancholy feeling in you?"
"Yes; it makes me think of the empty beer mugs and past good times." — Meggen-dorfer Blaetter.

Clark: "Why did you cut that man? He spoke as we passed!"
Deahohn: "I was just getting back at him. He's my barber."

Editor: "Now, about how large was that wonderful egg that your hen laid?"
Old Subscriber: "Waal, it must er been nigh as big as them hallstuns yew tell about in yer paper, by hen!"

Doctor Goat: "Has he eaten anything that didn't agree with him?"
Mrs. Nan: "I fear so. He found some odes on spring in the editor's back yard."

Mrs. Stubblefield: "Lemme see some o' them 'green goods' we hear so much about. I want something dreezy."
Soubrette: "That 'ham' actor says he had a car to himself coming back from the Pacific Coast."
Comedian: "Yes; box cars are seldom crowded."
